

The image is a composite of two photographs. The foreground photograph shows a man in a grey long-sleeved shirt and blue jeans riding a brown horse. The horse is wearing a dark harness and is walking on a grassy area covered with straw. In the background, there is a large, two-story wooden building with a balcony. The background photograph, which is enclosed in a green rectangular frame, shows a man in a brown jacket operating a horse-drawn straw machine. The machine is processing straw into a large pile. A large evergreen tree is visible behind the machine, and a green barrel is in the foreground. The entire scene is set outdoors on a grassy field.